THE BROKEN TOY.

A broken toy—what memories cling Around this half forgotten thing! What baby laughter seems to rise, Like old, delightful melodies! What shouts of wordless, tumult joy At sight of this poor broken toy!

Oh, thy feet that would not rest! Oh, dear head pillowed on my breast, What wouldst thou give to hold again The form we lost and treasure to! Ah, child, the empty cot is ours, But thine the sunshine and the flowers!

What could we give thee shouldst thou come To smile again upon thy home? Such little pleasures as we knew In this twilight life below, Some fragments of earth's paltry joys, A handful of its broken toys!

How calm thy lot, forever blest! How exquisite thy happy rest! How changeless, joyful and serene, Compared with what thy lot had been With us, whose fleeting, clouded joys Are at their best but broken toys! —Chambers' Journal.

THE EXTORTED KISS.

To the north of Europe, at the entrance of the gulf of the Baltic sea, stands a city resembling in its site "the queen of the Adriatic." This second Venice is known by the name of Stockholm, where in former days reigned two of the wisest and best of monarchs, by name Gustavus the Great. The first, because of his patriotism, skill and genius, had rescued his country from the subjugation of the Dane, and the second, by his indomitable energy and military knowledge, had exalted her to the first rank among the nations of the world. The latter dying in 1643, the crown devolved upon his daughter, Christine, then scarcely 15 years of age. It was a morning of July, 1643, in Stockholm. The air was resounding with merry ringing of bells, the roaring of artillery and the shouts of the populace, for it was the natal day of the youthful queen. Nobles, squires and the learned of the land had congregated to pay their homage to their youthful sovereign, and the peasant from the most distant regions of Sweden had contrived to make his way to Stockholm to gain a glance of the fair creature whose fame sounded throughout the world, and whose learning had been extolled by Descartes and Samanie.

The court of the palace was thronged with anxious spectators, and the troops were ranged in due order to greet the appearance of the queen, when suddenly the windows were thrown open and the flower of Sweden, ladies, nobles and officers—appeared in the most gorgeous uniforms. All eyes were directed to one point, and a universal cry arose of "She comes!" But Christine was not there. It was the young and handsome Count Lagardie, the favorite of the queen, who appeared and, having waited till the enthusiasm of the populace had subsided, read as follows:

"A bold and insolent peasant having dared to insult her majesty, it is deemed expedient that he should suffer punishment, but in consideration of the day, and that no cloud should mar the festivities, the queen ordains him to receive 15 blows in the presence of the assembled multitude as a warning to future offenders."

The chief of the police, with his assistants, having conducted the prisoner into the center of the court, executed the sentence. The poor fellow with difficulty refrained from giving vent to his sufferings, and the people looked on with amazement and pity at so sudden and ignominious a punishment. It appeared that this man was a poor young fellow who had come from Stockholm to share in the sports and pleasures of the birthday of his queen. His crime arose from his ignorance of the laws of etiquette. It had been told him in the province of Westmanland that on this day it was the custom of the sovereign to be not only accessible to her court and the nobles of the land, but also to the means of her subjects; that all had the privilege to approach and kiss the royal hand.

Kiss the hand of a queen, the hand of Christine—she that was the idol of his life, whose portrait was the only ornament that graced his smoky cabin—it was a happiness which he had never hoped to enjoy, and the young fellow resolved at all hazards, all trouble and fatigue to journey to Stockholm and share in the royal condescension. From Norberg to Stockholm was a long and fatiguing journey, and his means were not the most ample. But this was nothing—the image of Christine was to him as the loadstar to the mariner, and he reached Stockholm the evening before the royal birthday.

Having arrived, he directed his steps to the church of St. Nicholas to ask of heaven many years of glory and happiness to the youthful sovereign, and then with a portion of his little means purchased a smart costume, in which having attired himself he rambled about the city, feasting his eyes on the many wonders which for the first time he had beheld, and now to him appeared almost as creations of fairyland or romance.

The morning dawned bright and beautiful, and the forts of Fredericksburg and Waxholm announced that Christine had reached her sixteenth year. Awakened by the roar of artillery, Carl started from the ground where, like many others, he had passed the night in slumber, and, although yet early, found the streets thronged with thousands of inhabitants, evincing their enthusiasm in every possible manner. As the day wore on Carl mingled with a train who were proceeding to the palace, and from his smart attire and handsome figure contrived, although unintentionally, to pass the guard and enter the vestibule. The poor fellow, bewildered and delighted with the magnificence which on every hand surrounded him, kept wandering about, regardless as he was ignorant of all etiquette, jostling and pushing aside nobles, ladies, officers and other functionaries—in short, all who impeded him. At length, having entered the great gallery, his simple costume attracted the gaze and called up the astonishment of the assembled multitude. Murmurs upon murmurs rose all around, but still Carl kept advancing. He was ignorant of the storm then gathering and had proceeded as far as the door of the hall of audience when the officer in waiting demanded his name and business. He was about to reply when, catching a glance of Christine, his enthusiasm knew no bounds, and pushing the officer aside he rushed into the royal presence, seized the hand which at that moment was extended to the president of the senate and pressed it to his lips.

At sight of Carl and his boldness Christine uttered a scream and withdrew her hand, while a hundred arms were in a moment raised to chastise the peasant slave who had insulted the officer and aspired to an honor reserved but for the titled and the rich. And such was the crime for which he was thus disgraced—a crime arising from his ignorance and which merited not so ignominious a punishment.

When the last blow had fallen, he bounded from the hands of the guards, and casting his eyes toward the palace exclaimed, "I swear before God, Christine, that a day will come when I shall kiss thy royal hand!" Then, regarding his punisher with a look of ferocity, he dashed wildly through the crowd.

The next day the miner had quitted Stockholm, but he was never again heard of as Norberg.

Five years after this two prisoners, the one a young man of some six and twenty years, accused of robbery, the other the head of a band of highwaymen, together confined in a dungeon of the fort of Fredericksburg, were thus conversing:

"Ah," said the young man, "what I regret most is that I shall never again behold her I love."

"Child," replied the robber, "in a few years thou wilt be liberated. Do not despair, for if she thou loyest so really faithful you may yet be happy. Listen. Our young and beautiful queen once ordered 15 blows to be administered to the shoulders of a poor fellow who, struck with an uncomprehensible passion for her, dared to respectfully press his coarse lips to her dainty fingers, and for which he was disgraced as if he had committed a crime of the most daring character. But he swore before God that a day would arrive when the hand which had been refused him should be pressed to his lips and the mouth which commanded his punishment would sue to him for mercy."

"That day so much desired seemed as if it would never arrive, but it came at last. It was during the chase when the queen in her ardor became separated from her companions, and she found herself alone in the middle of a deep forest. Suddenly she was surrounded by a band of robbers, who seized her, courser, ignorant of her quality. 'Respect me,' she cried. 'I am your queen!' The word fell like lightning on my heart. The hour of retribution had arrived. 'Look on me,' I said. 'Do you not remember me? I am Carl, the poor miner who once presumed to kiss thy pretty hand, and for which you ordered him to be scourged in the face of all Stockholm on thy natal day, but I swore before God that a day would arrive when I should press it to my lips. It has arrived, and my oath shall now be accomplished.' I advanced toward her, but my heart failed me, and I wept like a child."

"Prostrate thyself," said she, recovering her wonted dignity and courage. "Those whom I permit to salute my hand must approach on bended knee."

"She extended to me her hand, and kneeling I pressed it to my lips, proud and happy that I had fulfilled my oath. I departed, first having conducted her to the right path. The next day I and my companions were surprised and taken. But, never mind—I still hold it as a truth, for experience has proved it, that in love we should never despair. There is always a favorable moment, and all that is necessary is to be watchful, and when it does arrive to permit it not to escape us. Do not despair. I hope yet to see many happy hours."

The jailer opened the door of the prison and pronounced the name of Carl.

"Along, my lad!" cried he to the prisoner.

Carl was about to reply, but was prevented by the keeper continuing:

"Hush! It is useless. The jailers are ready, and the executioner awaits you." —New York News.

THE QUEST.

Upon my lips there fell when first the night Pales in the highest heaven, seeing day Far down the fathomless eastern depths away.

Pales with a fearful joy, a dread delight— Upon my lips, with weakling watching white These fell a kiss. One instant's space it lay Soft as a roselip that the west wind dry, And then my eyes awoke to dazzled sight.

The warmth, the tender impact and the thrill Burnt on my lips, and the calm pulse of sleep Awoke and quivered quick in soft surprise. From that day forward knew I love!

And still By day I search and nightly vigil keep For her revealed to me in such strange guise. —The Late H. C. Banner in Scribner's.

THE BOER AT HOME.

He Does Not Hate All Englishmen, Only Some of Them.

Bryant Lindley met a Boer and asked him why he hated the English. The Boer, who amounted to "Go to the devil!" Upon this he protested angrily, and the Boer rejoined in equal bad humor. At length the Boer shouted, "What's your name anyway?" and when he heard it his manner altered at once, and he exclaimed, "What, and are you the son of the great American missionary Daniel Lindley?" My friend gladly pleaded guilty to this charge, and the surly Boer became at once the most hospitable friend and begged forgiveness for his rudeness. As they rode together toward the road which my friend was seeking the Boer recounted with grateful satisfaction the many good deeds performed by the elder Lindley, but of them all the best to him was that represented by a sound thrashing he had once received at the hands of this venerable missionary. For it appeared that this particular Boer in his youth had been sent to a school taught by Lindley; that the Dutchman was noted for his size and strength and had bragged of his capacity to down the teacher, and had actually sought the opportunity by refusing obedience. But he soon learned that he had made a gross mistake, for this particular missionary was also a noted athlete and gave him such a hiding with a bullock whip that the young giant roared for mercy before the whole school. And for this and similar deeds the Boers loved the elder Lindley, and this particular Boer venerated his memory.

On the evening in question, when the two men were about to part, the Boer, who had been so uncivil at first, begged Lindley, with tears in his eyes, to grant him a great favor for the sake of his conscience. "Your father," said he, "did me a service so great that I can never repay it—he gave me the worst thrashing I ever had—he saved my character, and I am a better man today, thanks to him."

My friend cheerfully promised to grant the request, puzzling his head as to what was going to be required of him. The Boer was mounted upon an excellent horse, which he prized beyond anything he owned. He dismounted, put the reins in Lindley's hand and then ran away into the black forest as though the devil were after him. Here was no Indian giving. This Boer had not it out of the power of the American to discover the name or whereabouts of the strange giver.

It is a story typical of the Boer and serves to illustrate many apparent contradictions in his nature. He does not hate Englishmen in general. He hates only those who seem to threaten his peculiar quality of independence. "The Dutch Feeling Toward England," by Pontney Bigelow, in Harper's Magazine.

At length the Boer shouted, "What's your name anyway?" and when he heard it his manner altered at once, and he exclaimed, "What, and are you the son of the great American missionary Daniel Lindley?" My friend gladly pleaded guilty to this charge, and the surly Boer became at once the most hospitable friend and begged forgiveness for his rudeness. As they rode together toward the road which my friend was seeking the Boer recounted with grateful satisfaction the many good deeds performed by the elder Lindley, but of them all the best to him was that represented by a sound thrashing he had once received at the hands of this venerable missionary. For it appeared that this particular Boer in his youth had been sent to a school taught by Lindley; that the Dutchman was noted for his size and strength and had bragged of his capacity to down the teacher, and had actually sought the opportunity by refusing obedience. But he soon learned that he had made a gross mistake, for this particular missionary

INDEX-TRIBUNE

SONOMA, SEPTEMBER 11, 1897.

THE first note of warning against taking stock in the joint stock companies which are being organized all over the country to explore and develop the gold fields of the Klondyke and other rivers tributary to the Yukon appeared in these columns some weeks ago. The editorial, which was a warning to the unwary, has appeared in a number of our exchanges duly credited, while others have swiped the whole business and palmed the article off in their editorial columns as original matter. The Tracy Times is one of the latter. Now, brother Blumer, this is hardly the square thing and you surely will agree with us that if the article in question was worthy of re-publication it was certainly worthy of a proper credit. In regard to the local pages of the INDEX-TRIBUNE we have no objection to your helping yourself with your shears to any old thing you may find, credit or no credit, but we most certainly insist on the proper credit being given to our editorials. If this is not done it might appear to some that we, not the other fellow, are engaged in the editorial pilfering business.

"Blumer," you may be all right
On a bicycle, we'll admit;
But when it comes to swiping,
We think you'd better quit.

THE attempt to raise the assessment roll of Sonoma county has proved a dead failure. At a meeting of the State Board of Equalization held in Sacramento on Wednesday last Sonoma county instead of having her assessment raised had it lowered 15 per cent., together with 24 other counties. Eleven counties were reduced ten per cent. while San Francisco's assessment was allowed to remain unchanged. The next State tax levy will be about 50 cents, which will include the two per cent. State University tax authorized by the Coyote Legislature of last winter.

JOURNALISTIC AMENITIES.—Editor Granice of the INDEX-TRIBUNE of Sonoma and Editor Ravenscroft of the Petaluma Courier have put on the gloves and are figuratively speaking, taking a number of falls out of each other. These esteemed brothers should emulate the example of San Francisco and never speak except in honored phrase about each other.

We object to our contemporary's decision about those "falls out of each other." Why, we knocked the other fellow out in the first round in that journalistic scrap and he is now trying to tell how we did it. Brother Richards as a referee you are no good, anyhow.

THE advocates of a municipal ownership of waterworks, comprising about four-fifths of the population of Sonoma, are growing impatient at the delay of the Supreme Court in rendering a decision in the bond suit of P. W. Murphy vs. The City of San Luis Obispo. Until this decision is handed down the water question will be practically tied up. In the meantime let our citizens all put their shoulders to the wheel and help boost the electric lighting project along.

THE celebration of Admission Day in Santa Rosa was a grand success. The day was a lovely one and everything passed off without a hitch. Between twelve and fifteen thousand people participated in the festivities. All those who attended from Sonoma Valley, and their names are legion, are unanimous in saying that Santa Rosa did herself proud in providing for and entertaining her visitors and guests.

THAT the columns of the INDEX-TRIBUNE are appreciated by advertisers no better evidence is wanting than a glance at the four pages of this issue. An advertiser who places his ad in these columns gets his money's worth, as the INDEX-TRIBUNE has the circulation. An ad placed in a newspaper going to beggars for subscribers and everything else isn't worth schucks.

W. S. STALEY, who was recently appointed a Deputy United States Marshal for Alaska, will shortly leave for Dyea, where he will enter upon the discharge of his duties.

ADVERTISE in these columns and keep up with time.

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

Ed. INDEX-TRIBUNE:

Rumor has it that an effort is being made by a number of our representative citizens to organize a company for the purpose of lighting Sonoma with electricity. This is unquestionably a step in the right direction. Progression is the spirit of the age; we propose to be in the procession. If the people of this city will flock loyally to the support of these gentlemen who are endeavoring to place this city abreast of the times we feel that a sentiment of progress will be engendered which will spread in ever increasing circles and place us in that position to which we are entitled and which our remarkable natural advantages demand. The nauseating brand "Sjilurian" has marred our fair name long enough. The time is now ripe for us to forever discard it. With our streets and business houses lighted with electricity the town will always present a live appearance. When the long dark winter evenings close in upon us with their accompanying mud and slush let us return to our homes under the brilliant, sparkling electric lights and relegate our smoky lanterns to the garret, where they belong. Let us lay aside petty jealousies and differences and stand together on a proposition which is pregnant with great good. The stockholders are our own citizens. Their investment exhibits a spirit of confidence in the future of the town, which is certain to attract capital. Let us all stand together in this matter either by financial or moral support and be not the individual who gets astride the tail of progress and yells "whoa."

CITIZEN.

ANOTHER TROPHY.

Sonoma, as Usual, Gets Away With the Honors.

It will be remembered, says the Santa Rosa Democrat, that the American Pomological Society, whose headquarters are in Boston, Mass., visited Sonoma county two years ago, after an annual meeting held in Sacramento. At the Sacramento meeting an exhibit was made by the Sonoma County Horticultural Society of the products of this county in competition with other counties of the State.

Nothing was heard of this critical test until a few days ago, when G. N. Whitaker, who was then President of the Horticultural Society of Sonoma, received a registered package without letter of explanation. The ex-President of the society opened the package, and to his surprise found it was a bronze medal of the American Pomological Society, awarded to Sonoma county for the best display of nuts, seeds and fruits. It was a surprise to Mr. Whitaker, as well as a great gratification to him, and Sonoma now has another decoration for its fruitfulness to add to many other triumphs along similar lines.

No man has done more to win these honors than G. N. Whitaker, the eminent horticulturist to whom this medal was forwarded. He has seventeen gold and silver medals awarded to Pomona Grange of Sonoma county by various State, County and Mechanics' Fairs. He has been an active member and an officer of Pomona Grange since its organization.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board at their session on Wednesday allowed a number of claims for Constable fees; also the following bills for road work in the various road districts:

E. S. Gray, Road Commissioner—Cloverdale, $410.98.
T. C. Putnam, Road Commissioner—Lakerville, $87.35; Penn's Grove, $152.25; Sonoma, $473.19.
H. W. Austin, Road Commissioner—Russian River, $171.10; Santa Rosa, $361.74; Fulton, $342.83.
E. W. Hayden, Road Commissioner—Marin, $82.30; Forestville, $155.57; Sebastopol, $305.86; Bloomfield, $308.91; Petaluma, $222.82.

The sum of $75 was appropriated for the purchase of a flag and flag-staff for the Court House, and the care of the same was placed in the hands of the janitor.

James P. Duckery and attorneys Webber and Lullard appeared before the Board and made short addresses relative to the inspection of dairy herds and all dairy products. After hearing them at length the Board fixed Saturday morning at 10 o'clock as the hour for a further hearing on the matter and the Clerk was instructed to notify the leading dairymen of the county that their presence was desired at that time.

Back from the Grave

We cannot come, but we can often stay our progress thither. Disease, like everything else, must have a beginning. All chronic maladies tend to shorten life, and render it a species of martyrdom while they last. Malaria, kidney complaint, chronic indigestion, rheumatism—all have small beginnings and may be stayed at the source with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This excellent tonic and alterative adapted alike to the prevention of disorders of the system and to their removal, and its early use cannot be too strongly advocated. To renew appetite and insure tranquil rest, there is no surer and pleasanter means than the Bitters. The effects of overwork and exhaustion, mental or physical, are counteracted by it, and the busy merchant, the tired clerk or operative, and the brain weary student, author or newspaper man, derive from it pleasant relief and future energy.

Electric Light for Sonoma.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the proposed electric lighting company to furnish Sonoma with electric light, held in Fred'k T. Duhring's law parlors last Saturday, it was decided to go ahead with the project provided the people of Sonoma would stand in with those who are to put up the money to erect and operate the plant by substituting incandescent electric lights for coal oil and tallow candles. It will be the aim of those who are endeavoring to push the project ahead to give to the people of Sonoma a first-class lighting system at a reasonable cost per light. The following citizens have subscribed to the capital stock of the proposed company: C. F. Leiding, Henry Weil, Julius Fochetti, S. Ciucci, H. H. Granice, Robt. Hall, S. Schocken, Fred'k T. Duhring, F. Clewe and C. Aguilon.

Confidence Operator Arrested.

Deputy Sheriff Ohm on Wednesday last arrested a stranger at El Verano station on suspicion of being a confidence operator. The man, who said his name was Willis, was attempting to beat his way into Santa Rosa on a Southern Pacific train. Upon being searched a pack of marked cards, a set of loaded dice and other swindling devices were found upon his person. These were confiscated, after which the officer took him prisoner to Santa Rosa and locked him up in the County Jail.

Fred. Fisher, an old Sonoma boy, but who now resides in Petaluma, returned to his home last Sunday from a trip to the Trinity gold fields. He reports a scarcity of water at the mines, but expects to return in the spring and do some prospecting. He was accompanied by four fellow gold seekers.

While out hunting back of the Thos. Erskine residence, last Tuesday morning, Joe Toroni shot and killed a large wild cat. The animal, when shot, was stealing through the brush near Agua Caliente Creek and was making for the thickly wooded hills. It tipped the scales at twenty pounds.

BASE BALL.

The Pioneers of Napa vs. The Sonoma Valley Two.

The game of base ball played last Sunday between the Pioneers of Napa and the Sonoma Valley Club proved a signal victory for the Napa boys with a score of 16 to 1. In the first and second innings the Sonoma boys held their own, neither side scoring, but after that they went all to pieces, if we except Joe Kiser, who was behind the bat, and Wm. Broderick, who was in the pitcher's box. The contest might be aptly designated the Sonoma Two vs. the Napa Nine. The Napa Reflector, in speaking of the game, says:

"The greatest game of the season was the one played at Sonoma on Sunday between the Pioneers of Napa and the Sonoma club. Chapman pitched for the Pioneers, and it didn't seem any trouble at all for him to strike the Sonoma boys out. When the Pioneers were retired they would wander out in the field and lie down. They should have had hammocks with them. Then the pitcher and catcher would strike the Sonoma's out in one, two, three order. Great sport. However, in the last inning, while the Pioneer fielders were gathering fruit in an adjoining orchard one of the Sonoma players got in a two-bagger and in some way got home. The game ended shortly afterwards with the score of 16 to 1 in favor of the Pioneers.

Charged With Insanity.

A Swiss, a total stranger in this valley, made his appearance in town on Wednesday evening last in a demented condition. He hunted up City Marshal Robin and informed him that his name was Conrad Welti. In a rambling way he informed the officer that his life was being sought by a crowd of people from Ukiah and appealed to the officer for protection. That the man was crazy did not admit of a doubt and on complaint of the Marshal a warrant charging the man with being insane was issued by Judge Cheney. The unfortunate man was then arrested and placed in the lock-up. Yesterday morning he was taken to Santa Rosa, where he will be examined by a lunacy commission.

Farewell Sermon.

Rev. O. E. Hotle, for the past two years pastor of the Methodist Church, will preach his farewell sermon to-morrow (Sunday) morning. His talk will embrace his opinion of Sonoma and her people. The subject of the reverend gentleman's discourse in the evening will be on "The Needs of Sonoma." These talks will prove very interesting and instructive and everybody in town, and particularly the men, even though they are not in the habit of going to church, should be present and hear what the parson has to say on matters of local interest.

First-Street East Extension.

A six foot surfaced picket fence is being erected by S. Schocken on both sides of the First-street East extension. Altogether there will be seven hundred feet of this fencing, which will be painted a pure white. The building of this fencing, sidewalk, removing buildings, etc., will cost Mr. Schocken between $600 and $700.

Editor Ravenscroft of Petaluma Must Stand Trial in the Superior Court.

Editor Ravenscroft of the Petaluma Courier, who was recently arrested on complaint of City Trustee Walsh of that city, charged with criminal libel, and who has been out on $500 bail since his arrest, had his preliminary examination before Judge King on Friday of last week. Many witnesses were examined. Attorney Meyer represented the defense and T. J. Butts, Assistant District Attorney, and John P. Rogers conducted the prosecution. The attorney for Mr. Ravenscroft moved for a dismissal on the grounds that the Court had no jurisdiction. The motion was denied and an exception taken. The witnesses pro and con were then examined, after which the defendant was held to answer to the charge before the Superior Court with bonds fixed at $500.

Posters are out advertising a social hop to be given by the boys of Sonoma at Mervyn Hall next Saturday evening. This will break the monotony of the regulation dance, as vocal music and other features will be introduced. Music will be furnished by a Spanish mandolin orchestra of San Francisco, which has been especially engaged for the occasion. Col. Harrison promises to furnish an excellent supper. We all look forward for an enjoyable time.

How They Wash.

The hardest worked washerwomen in the world are the Koreans. They have to wash about a dozen dresses for their husbands, and inasmuch as every man wears pajamas or drawers, so busy that they come up to his neck like those of a clown, they have plenty to do. The washing is usually done in cold water and often in running streams. The clothes are pounded with paddles until they shine like a shirt front fresh from a Chinese laundry.

The Japanese rip their garments apart for every washing, and they iron their clothes by spreading them on a flat board and leaving this up against the house to dry. The sun takes the wrinkles out of the clothes, and some of them have quite a luster. The Japanese woman does her washing out of doors. Her wash tub is not more than six inches high and is about as big around as the average dishpan. She gets the dirt out of the clothes by rubbing them between her hands. She sometimes uses Japanese soap, which is full of grease, and works away with her bare feet. The Chinese girls do their washing in much the same way. The washing in Egypt is usually done by the men. The Egyptian washerman stands naked on the banks of the Nile and slaps the wet clothes, with a noise like the shot of a pistol, and the smooth stones at the edge of the running water, and such fellah women as wash pound the dirt out of their clothes in the same way.

Frenchwomen pound the dirt out with paddles, often alternating the clothes up on stones, as the Egyptians do.—Exchange.

Marrying Made Pleasant.

All Gretta Green justices are not as frank as is E. C. Roberts of Lapeer, Mich. Squire Roberts—he is a justice of the peace, according to his station—makes a most candid bid for matrimonial fees. His letter heads are in themselves studies in open faced honesty of declaration, and if there is any yearning couple in the neighborhood of Lapeer that couple certainly yearns without cause, for the justice makes plain proclamation of his purpose. A letter head of his, sent hither by an admirer of his way of announcing himself, is decorated with a half tone portrait of the "Jeddo," a soldierly looking fellow, who probably used to be an auctioneer, and under the cut is the designation, "The original and only exclusively matrimonial magistrate." Close beside and printed in cunning little letters is this alluring statement, "Office at the elevator or First National bank parlors, or wherever most convenient to you," and below a further assertion is, "A fine line of high grade bridesmaids and groomsmen constantly on hand to assist in the service." Here are some other selections from the most remarkable letter head:

"Marriages solemnized promptly, accurately and eloquently. Plain ceremony—legal fee, osculation extra."
"Elopements a specialty. Night calls answered without extra charge. Consultation free."
"Certainly if matrimony languishes in Michigan it is not the fault of advertising or of Judge Roberts.—Chicago Record.

Grant's Change of Complexion.

Colonel Parker, the Indian, had been diligently employed in these busy days helping to take care of General Grant's correspondence. He wrote an excellent hand, and as one of the military secretaries often overhauled the general's correspondence and prepared answers to his private letters. This evening he was seated at the writing table in the general's tent, while his chief was standing at a little distance outside talking with some of the staff. A citizen, who had come to City Point in the employ of the sanitary commission and who had been at Cairo when the general took command there in 1861, approached the group and inquired: "Where is the old man's tent? I'd like to get a look at him. Haven't seen him for three years." Rawlins, to avoid being interrupted, said, "That's his tent," at the same time pointing to it.

The man stepped over to the tent, looked in, and saw the swarthy features of Parker as he sat in the general's chair. The visitor seemed a little puzzled, and as he walked away was heard to remark, "Yes, that's him, but he's got all fired sunburned since I last had a look at him." The general was greatly amused by the incident and repeated the remark afterward to Parker, who enjoyed it as much as the others.—"Campaigning With Grant," by General Horace Porter, in Century.

Grant's Pliant Hair.

After his return from abroad Grant had a little Japanese servant, who took charge of him as though the general were a bit of machinery and he were the engineer. Some of the newspaper men noticed that in the course of one trip Grant had six different hats, and they laughingly asked him what was the significance of the change. Grant said: "Why, I do not know. I supposed I had on the same hat all the time." Investigation brought out the fact that the little Jap, through the suggestion of some of the ladies of the party or some of the committee, had received ideas as to what kind of a hat the general ought to wear at certain towns. If it was a college town, just before he arrived the little Jap would tipple to the general, remove the slouch hat, place a silk hat carefully on the general's head and trip out, the general never losing a word of any conversation. At the next stop, if it was explained to the little Jap that it was a soldier town, off would come the silk hat and on went the general's military hat. He made it a rule for the general never to appear at two places in the same hat, and the joke of it was that Grant himself did not know anything of the scheme.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Belief Comes With Knowledge.

"Travelers' tales," although they have always been regarded with suspicion, were received by our ancestors in a singularly credulous spirit, and Marco Polo, and "that archliar" even, Sir John Mandeville himself, were treated with more or less respect. But as if to make up for their readiness to believe in "Gorgons and Hydras and Chimerae dire," when at a distance, other generations were singularly distrustful of most things near at hand. They displayed to a singular extent the wonderful skepticism that in all things directly touching the person generally accompanies ignorance. The state of mind was very much that of the honest farmer in the city who is in constant dread of being "banned."

Ignorance doubts itself, and consequently everybody and everything else. It is only complete knowledge that is more nearly skeptical, and advance toward it has been shown as much by what men are willing to believe and the readiness with which they believe it as by anything else. When the marvels of the Roentgen rays were announced, the attention of the world was brought up with a round turn by a discovery almost dramatic in its suddenness and surprise. Such sharp demands are becoming more and more frequent, but if there is anything more wonderful than the amazing nature of such inventions it is the way in which they are received.—Scribner's.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention the Sonoma Index-Tribune and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.
